ARCTIC WATCH WILDERNESS LODGE LAND TOUR

800 kilometers north of the Arctic Circle, home to polar bears, muskoxen, Arctic foxes, and a world-class beluga whale nursery, Arctic Watch is an unparalleled destination for the adventurous.

From wildlife photography to biking, hiking on the frozen Arctic ocean and tundra, or sea kayaking alongside beluga whales, we offer fully guided excursions in Canada's far north.

Arctic Watch Wilderness Lodge is situated on the historic Northwest Passage and is the most northerly fly-in lodge in the world. Gourmet meals and comfortable accommodation at 74° North makes Arctic Watch a unique adventure for those seeking an experience of a lifetime.

In the wild and unpredictable Arctic, weather patterns and wildlife can disrupt even the best-laid plans. All of our itineraries are "suggested"—we strive to ensure your visit to Arctic Watch is a trip of a lifetime and showcases the variety of activities and sights Arctic Watch has to offer. Each day's activities take into consideration the dynamic environment we operate within and may not always reflect the suggested itinerary outlined.

Arrival Instructions Guests arrive independently in Yellowknife and proceed directly to the Explorer Hotel. Guests arrive in Yellowknife the day before the private charter departs for Arctic Watch.

ITINERARY

Day 1: Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, Canada - The Adventure Begins

Fly to Yellowknife, the capital of Canada's Northwest Territories, and spend the night at the Explorer Hotel.

Day 2: Somerset Island, Nunavut - Catch Your First Glimpse of the Northwest Passage

After breakfast, depart Yellowknife on a private charter for the three-hour flight to Arctic Watch. You will land in the Arctic later that afternoon. After an introduction to the lodge and the surrounding landscape by the Arctic Watch team, you will have time to settle into your cabins. Before dinner is served, a short hike up to the local mountain is offered, featuring breathtaking views of the Northwest Passage and ice formations on the Arctic ocean. Lunch and dinner included.

Day 3: Somerset Island - ATV to Cunningham Beluga Estuary

ATVs are our most practical form of transportation to cover long distances on the tundra. Attend a hands-on introduction to all-terrain vehicles followed by a short drive to the Cunningham Estuary to watch beluga whales. Archaeological sites and artefacts dating to Viking contact can be seen along Somerset's coastline. Enjoy a delicious lunch buffet back at the lodge before departing for a short afternoon hike to the Triple Waterfalls. This short five kilometre roundtrip hike gives you an introduction to the plants and animals that live in the area. Encounters with muskox are common. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 4: Somerset Island - Fish for Arctic Char at Inukshuk Lake

Travel by ATV across the Cunningham River delta to Muskox Ridge. This scenic trail provides spectacular views of the area and is a great vantage point from which to see muskoxen and Arctic foxes. From the high ridge, hike down into one of the many depressions where muskoxen often spend the summer months foraging. After a picnic lunch at Inukshuk Lake, fishing gear will be supplied to catch and release Arctic char. Head back to the lodge along the River Trail keeping an eye out for birds such as snowy owls, jaegers, rough-legged hawks, and more. Instead of ATV, a human-powered option is also offered for guests--use electric bikes to explore the tundra with your guide. After dinner, an informal lecture by Richard Weber on his North Pole expeditions--highlighting his historic (and unrepeatable) 1995 unassisted journey--will be offered. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 5: Somerset Island - Sea Kayak through Cunningham Inlet

Sea kayak the gin-clear water of Cunningham Inlet while enjoying views of Gifford Point in the distance. Watch for beluga whales passing by your boat as they travel between the open water of the Northwest Passage and the mouth of the Cunningham River. Hop out on the other side of the inlet at Kayak Falls with stunning views of the Northwest Passage, and (with luck!) spot polar bear. After dinner, an informal lecture by Nansen Weber on wildlife photography will be offered. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 6: Somerset Island - Hike Spectacular Canyons

Travel by Mercedes Unimog to the east side of Cunningham Inlet where several unnamed canyons offer great hiking opportunities. The afternoon will be spent at the estuary to watch the beluga whales play in the freshwater as it spills into the Arctic Ocean. Packing into the turquoise waters of the sheltered bay, they can be seen splashing and gurgling as they rub themselves on the river stones. This particular spot is renowned because of the density of the whale population and their proximity to the shore. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 7: Somerset Island - Drive to Thule Archaeological Sites

Enjoy the views of the Northwest Passage from passenger seat of the four-seater all-terrain vehicles. Driving along the west shore of the inlet, stop at historic 1,000-year-old Thule sites situated along the coast and learn more about the rich history of the area. Turning west at Polar Bear Point, look for wildlife as we drive along the Northwest Passage. A short hike to Nansen's ridge offers incredible views across the passage and showcases the characteristic Arctic landscape. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 8: Somerset Island - Paddle the Cunningham River

Climb into the all-terrain Mercedes Unimog truck and head to the raft put-in on the Cunningham River. Hike the last stretch through the Badlands, a unique landscape with ancient 8,000-year-old bowhead whale skeletons exposed on the tundra. The area is inhabited by muskox, snow geese, and Arctic foxes. Savour a picnic lunch by the river as the team prepares the rafts, kayaks, and/or standup paddleboards for the two to three hour return to Arctic Watch. Leisurely paddle as the river narrows into a towering canyon, eventually opening again into the braided flats in front of the lodge. Upon the return, it is the final dinner of the adventure. In the evening take the polar plunge! Breakfast, lunch, and dinner included.

Day 9: Somerset Island - Choose Your Own Adventure

By now, you'll be familiar with the area and can opt to do an activity that you missed during the week or would like to repeat. There is lots of time before the flight departs in the late afternoon. Upon arriving in Yellowknife, you will spend the night at the Explorer Hotel before your return flight home. Breakfast and lunch included.

Day 10: Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, Canada - A Fond Farewell

Depart Yellowknife for your return flight home.

Charter Flight: Sea-Run Arctic Char Fishing in Creswell Bay 2900 CAD

Love fishing? Creswell Bay is one of the top locations to fish for Arctic char. Their biannual migration offers a world-class fishing opportunity just a forty-minute flight from Arctic Watch. The Arctic char range in size from six to twenty pounds. A minimum of two guests is required, maximum of ten.

Heli-hike and fly the Northwest Passage 2900 CAD

Take to the sky and see the beautiful landscapes from above as you fly the Northwest Passage. Observe narwhal, bowhead and beluga whales, seals, and polar bear. If time and weather permits, you will land at and explore historic Beechey Island and visit the Franklin graves. In 1845, the Franklin Expedition searching for the Northwest Passage went horribly wrong. After wintering on Beechey Island, both the HMS Erebus and HMS Terror were lost. All 129 men perished but what actually happened still remains a mystery. A minimum of seven guests is required.
