Torshavn and Tvøroyri in the Faroe Islands offer enchanting architecture and customs, while the Shetland Islands boast the breathtaking historic site of Jarlshof. Discover the ancient wonders of Stromness, enjoy the picturesque settings of Portree and soak in the legend of the Giant's Causeway in Northern Ireland. On this luxury cruise, a variety of engaging activities await. Hike through the rugged terrains of the Faroe Islands and Northern Ireland, or kayak with the expedition team along Iceland's coasts. Each destination provides unique exploration opportunities, from unraveling the mysteries of medieval Orkney to uncovering the serene beauty of the Scottish isles.

ITINERARY

Days 0 - 1 Pre Cruise & Reykjavik

Make sure there is sufficient time to explore this diminutive but dramatic capital city. Despite its small size, you won't be short of things to see and do. To get your bearings, take the elevator to the top of Hallgrímskirkja. This church, designed by famed Icelandic architect Guðjón Samuelsson is one of the most distinctive buildings in town. When you return to earth, visit the city's other renowned building Harpa Concert Hall, located at the heart of Reykjavik's regenerated harbour - also the home of the Maritime Museum. Speaking of cultural spaces, tour the National Museum to learn the story of Iceland from past to present. The Reykjavik Art Museum houses an impressive contemporary collection including eye-catching pieces by Erro. And, of course, just 50 kilometres outside the city lies Thingvellir National Park, the site of Iceland's original Viking parliament.

Day 2 Heimaey, Westman Island

Ten million Atlantic puffins make Heimaey, a 13-square-km island in the Westman Islands off southern Iceland, the largest puffin colony in the world from mid-April until the beginning of August. Despite a population of 4,000 people, puffins have even been spotted in the town of Vestmannaeyjar. The fascinating Eldheimar museum charts the story of the town's devastation by lava from the Eldfell volcano in 1973. Nearby is Vestmannaeyjar Bird Cliff.

Day 3 Djupivogur

With Viking-era origins, Djupivogur, a tranquil fishing village with fewer than 500 residents, is renowned for its unhurried pace of life and the art installation 'The Eggs at Merry Bay,' featuring 34 granite eggs representing local bird species. Nearby, Vatnajökull National Park, covering 14 percent of Iceland, offers a wild expanse with Europe's largest ice cap, Vatnajökull Glacier, thundering glacial rivers and active volcanoes.

Day 4 Torshavn

Cut adrift in the Atlantic, between Scotland and Iceland, the Faroes are a self-governing archipelago in the Kingdom of Denmark. On the southern tip of Streymoy, the largest of the 18 islands, the lively little capital of Torshavn (Thor's Harbour) charms with its rainbow-hued clapboard warehouses, grass-roofed wooden churches and the quaint old quarter, Tinganes. Off the radar for many, the Faroes are fast becoming known for their scenery.

Day 5 Tvøroyri

Tvøroyri is the main port of Suðuroy, the southernmost of the Faroe Islands, founded in 1836. Once one of the largest towns and a key fishing hub, it now hosts a village museum, an art gallery, and the cultural centre SALT. Nearby, Hvannhagi, with its unique geological landscape and diverse flora, is considered ideal for a national park. Suðuroy, the only Faroese island with coal deposits, also offers tours of a working mine.

Day 6 Lerwick, Shetland Islands, Scotland

Lerwick, closer to Norway than mainland Scotland, is the Shetland Islands' capital and only town. This solid, stone-built port has a Dutch flair, with 17th-century Fort Charlotte reflecting its maritime past. At Shetland's southern tip, the dramatic Sumburgh Head Bird Cliffs offer spectacular views and host thousands of nesting seabirds including puffins, guillemots and kittiwakes. Across the islands, around 1,500 tiny Shetland ponies roam freely.

Day 7 Stromness, Orkney Islands, Scotland

Stromness is an 18th-century stone seaport, barely changed since Captain Cook's ships stopped in 1780. The Pier Arts Centre, housing modern art, is often called a "little seaside Tate." Just outside town, the Heart of Neolithic Orkney features sites like the Ring of Brodgar and Standing Stones of Stenness. Nature lovers can enjoy coastal walks with stunning views of Hoy Sound and the dramatic cliffs of nearby Hoy.

Day 8 Portree, Isle of Skye, Scotland

Portree is the largest town, capital and gateway to the Isle of Skye in the Inner Hebrides. Fringed by cliffs, its harbour, with a pier designed by engineer Thomas Telford, is surrounded by colourful homes. The jagged majestic Cuillin Hills, part of the MacLeod Estate, include a protected for various species of birds including the golden eagle. Nearby, Dunvegan Castle, ancestral seat of Clan MacLeod, reveals Skye's rich past.

Day 12 Dublin

One of Britain's most beautiful stretches of water, The Sound of Mull, between the Isle of Mull and the Scottish mainland, offers spectacular views with ancient castles, beaches and dramatic cliffs always on view. Distant mountain peaks, often shrouded in mist, add to the dreamlike scenery. Three lighthouses stand guard, including Rubha nan Gall Lighthouse, while a number of wrecks sit below on the seabed.

Day 9 Fort William

Nestled on Loch Linnhe's shores, Fort William is a hub for outdoor enthusiasts and wildlife spotting such as seals in Loch Linnhe and the gateway to Ben Nevis, the UK's highest peak, nearby. The Cromwell-built fort of 1654 survived a Jacobite siege in 1746. A plinth at its remnants marks the start of the 73-mile "Great Glen Way." The town's history is featured at the West Highland Museum, and the Ben Nevis Distillery is renowned for its whisky.

Day 10 Portrush, Northern Ireland

This small town is the gateway to Northern Ireland's famous Causeway Coast, with clifftop walks and beaches. UNESCO-listed Giant's Causeway, with 40,000 basalt columns, is the region's top attraction, framed by the crashing Atlantic on one side and towering cliffs on the other. Swan Hellenic guests visit early morning before it opens, experiencing its raw beauty in peace - but is it shaped by volcanic forces or legendary Celtic giants?

Day 11 Douglas, Isle of Man

Set in the middle of the Irish Sea, the Isle of Man is a self-governing kingdom designated a biosphere reserve by UNESCO. Horse-drawn trams run along the seafront promenade and nearby is the Manx Museum, home to an extensive collection of artefacts documenting the history of the island. The ruined 11th-century Peel Castle is located on the island's west coast. Renowned for the T.T. Motorbike Races, the north hosts the Isle of Man Motor Museum.

Dublin, capital of Ireland, seamlessly blends grit and beauty with Georgian squares, parks and canals. It boasts a rich literary heritage, home to renowned writers like Oscar Wilde and James Joyce. Literary attractions include Trinity College Library, housing the 9th-century Book of Kells, and the James Joyce Centre. The vibrant pub culture, with landmarks like the Guinness Storehouse and Temple Bar, adds to its lively charm.
